"Today, the Governor of Arizona announced that he is re-implementing certain restrictions related to certain businesses due to the rise in new COVID-19 cases. Here on the Navajo Nation, we certainly don't want another spike in cases, so we need to stay the course and keep fighting this modern-day monster together. It's a challenge for our Nation to keep flattening the curve when areas around us are seeing spikes in cases, but we are strong and resilient and we will overcome this pandemic eventually," said Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez.

President Nez and Vice President Myron Lizer will host an online town hall on Tuesday, June 30 at 10:00 a.m. (MDT) live on the Nez-Lizer Facebook page to provide important updates.

"We're not backing down from this virus. We are blessed to have so many doctors, nurses, EMT's, police officers, and many other first responders who are healing our people and fighting for their lives every day. Please continue to pray for those who are fighting the virus and those who are grieving for their loved ones. Our frontline warriors are the answers to our prayers, so let's keep supporting them and encouraging them," said Vice President Lizer.
